

Sound Mood Board

The Gallery

Scene opens with a sharp high pitched sound getting louder and higher. It abruptly stops at the sound of an email notification.

Soft foot steps when walking around the gallery.

0:00 - 1:30

8:20 - 9:00

11:39 - 12:00

There is a moment of complete silence after the phone buzzes for emphasis.

When The Protagonist stands up to begin walking around background music will be soft, mystical and similar to that in 'House Comes With A Bird'.

Distorted Sound

'Misty Requiem' is another good example of the kind of song I would want to play. As the scene progresses I would like the song to become distorted such as from 2:55 - 3:05.

- Sound effects of her head falling into water
- Sounds of being underwater
- The sound bubbles make when screaming underwater

The music from the staircase scene is distorted and plays quietly; it is now an afterthought allowing the viewer to focus on The Protagonist's suffering.

The Staircase

Music for this scene needs to have an enchanting quality. It gets louder as The Protagonist gets higher and higher. It is unsettlingly calm. The song is to be repetitive and almost hypnotic. The sound of water plays (before the bathroom scene) as her head falls back.

Here is an example of the type of song I like, specifically 0:00 - 0:38.

Loud

Quiet

As well as music, I'd like sound effects of the staircase creaking in the background.

The Field

- Sound effects of The Protagonist's walking on grass, gravel, sticks etc.
- Wind increases to create an ominous feel.

More mysterious music is to be used which gets more tense as The Protagonist panics and her walking quickens. The title theme from 'Le Samourai' is the type of song I think would work well.

Like in the gallery scene, a high pitched sound will play as The Protagonist panics ending when she is back in the gallery.
